100 -	CHAPTER 1. RECORDS COMMON TO MOST OFFICES This chapter groups two types of file material, nonrecord and record.
101 -	SECTION 1. NONRECORD MATERIAL This section defines the types of documents which are considered nonrecord and provides standards for their disposition. Nonrecord materials have no documentary or evidential value. They are: (1) duplicate copies of the official record copy; (2) printed or processed materials of which only the master copy is considered official; or (3) transitory material which ceases to have any value after its contents are incorporated or adequately summarized in other documents (e.g., preliminary drafts, shorthand notes, worksheets, etc.). Retention of nonrecord material is not required. Nonrecord material accumulates in offices as a convenience to personnel but should be kept to a minimum. Most of this material should be destroyed without filing. If, however, nonrecord material is filed, it should be kept separately from official records. The following series cover nonrecord materials common to all offices.
101 - 01	Files Inventory and Disposition Plans. Form MMS-1933, which reflects file categories and disposal instructions, and other information about the files accumulated at an individual file station.	Cut off at close of fiscal year. 101 - 02	Reading or Chronological Files. Copies of correspondence and other documents prepared and maintained by originating office, used solely as a reading or reference file.	Cut off at close fiscal year.

101 - 03	Suspense Files. Documents arranged in chronological order as a reminder that an action is required on a given date or that a reply to action is expected and, if not received, should be traced on a given date. The following are examples of suspense files:
- a	A Note or Other Reminder to Take Action.	Destroy after action is taken. GRS 23.6a
- b	The File Copy, or an Extra Copy of an Outgoing Communication, Filed by the Date on Which a Reply is Expected.	Withdraw documents when reply is received. If suspense copy is an extra copy, destroy immediately. If suspense copy is the file copy, incorporate it into the official files. GRS 23.6b
101 - 04	Reserved.
